WELCOME

THE MARKET IS ON THE MOVE

The superyacht market has turned a corner, resulting in more yacht sales in the second quarter of 2014 than at any time post 2007. This positive activity has resulted in Burgess expanding its fleet to include all yachts of 30m+, as the successful OceanStyle semi-custom yacht sector is integrated into the Burgess brand.

The results from the Burgess sales team on the second-hand brokerage market this year have been unprecedented. We recorded 23 substantial sales in the first half of the year and in one exceptional week we sold a large yacht every day for seven days!

The yachts that have been sold tend to be the most competitively priced in their class, with sought-after pedigrees and a high level of quality. The increase in yacht sales has not sparked significant price uplifts as yet, but we do anticipate gentle upward pressure on the prices of quality vessels, due to reduced stock levels, over the next 12 months. However, these increased rates are still unlikely to exceed the holding costs of the asset. While it would be tempting to say that the shortage of quality yachts for sale and the renewed demand could encourage a pricing boom, we are only too aware that various simmering geo-political events could quickly knock market confidence.

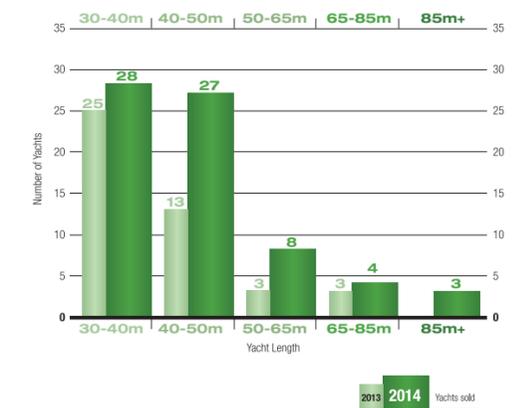

Shipyards are also benefitting from the renewed market activity and relative shortage of large, recently built yachts available to buyers. While prices haven't risen significantly yet, the build slots are gradually being filled and delivery times are now stretching to 18 months and beyond. As ever, we are delighted to see our technical company, Burgess Technical Services, engaged in some very challenging and exciting large new build projects. There are, however, several part-built yacht projects that are for sale mid-way through construction (see page 24) and we expect these to sell promptly.

Despite the recent changes in the market, the buyer profile is still predominantly previous yacht owners that are knowledgeable about yachting. There are a few buyers from new markets, but the numbers are still relatively small.

In recent years the semi-custom yacht sector has seen substantial growth, and there is now little to differentiate between it and the fully custom sector. Taking this into account, as well as subtle market changes and advances in yacht production techniques, we have taken the exciting step of integrating the highly successful OceanStyle brand fully into the Burgess organisation. As of 1 September 2014 we will be offering all our brokerage, charter and management services for yachts over 30m under the Burgess banner. This move will combine the expertise of our energetic OceanStyle team with the global power of the Burgess brand in further expanding the semi-custom market sector.

As the autumn boat show season approaches it will be fascinating to see how the market develops. The key to any successful sale or purchase is having access to the very best market insight and advice, and the Burgess team of experienced brokers are at hand to share their expertise.

Beautifully crafted and full of character, the main saloon is a medley of rich fabrics and contrasting textures, while the upper deck salon is bright and modern with stylish furniture and graphic art throughout. DELIVERED IN 12 MONTHS

As the number of pedigree superyachts for sale shrinks, clients will turn to lesser-known yards for vessels that can be personalised and delivered for summer 2015. Burgess presents three brand new yachts that are awaiting customisation and ready to go.

The high volume explorer yacht project, U-77, was awarded the highest rating for sea keeping, hull form and efficiency by the Marin marine research facility in The Netherlands. Arranged over six decks with a total floor area of 1260sqm, this vessel will accommodate 20 guests and 21 crew. The completed interior has plenty of scope for personalisation, allowing a new owner to tailor the yacht entirely to their own taste.

This is an excellent opportunity to purchase a large yacht with a fraction of the lead time of a new build project of this size. With much of the work already completed, U-77 is currently in New Zealand and could be delivered to her new owner within 12 – 18 months.
